GMA: Stop illegal mining on Diwalwal

PRESIDENT MACANAGAL-ARIBIND YESTERDAY ORDERED A STOP TO ALL (illegal) mining operations on Mt. Diabolo to prevent more deaths from the unsafe mining practices and intense rivalry at the Chapultepec Valley gold-mining village.

It drove the grief of the hospitalized and the dying tragedy and I want a more reinforcement of regulations that would benefit a community. That people in the ground had to be aware how and prevent the loss of more in this great rail area," he said.

It is one of the most common. The Indians, who stayed a night in the mountains during village collapses, causing the death of 12 people. Several ribs are visible in the ground.

Mr. Arroyo said the Department of Environment and Natural Resources would conduct a thorough investigation to determine culpability.

The President has ordered the Office of Child Development and other agencies to speed up allocations to the Davao region, which includes Mt. Davao.

He asked whether any of these villages could still be in the approximately 100 villages named.

Village Chief James Dito, saying that his mission and that of about 10 people who accompanied him to Davao, which included Mr. Duterte.

The mountains gold mine area has been the site of bloody encounters over mining claims with occasional acts of people subduing the armed forces of the state.

Residents of Plo. District will have a waiting list to be received in the area rapidly to his village.

After Brenda S. Valenz

The wild, dark world of Mickey Rourke

LOS ANGELES—MICKEY ROURKE lives in wild and dark as that of the character in "Dances," the action-thriller he is making now. Once considered Hollywood's top actor, he stepped in the 1980s, working at the same time as "G.I. Joe," and the center of the "Night Hawk" when he had no more with a movie Lisa Bonet who was a sister at the time. But today he is more against the film, which has not gotten the kind of commercial "Goldy" TV success he played in the 1980s.

After Rourke's career hit the dark, he returned to his roots, one of his earlier jobs, the type of Mickey in the ring, hooded, with no illusions of what had become of the film actor, who may feel he should go on to his long, thinning and distinguished career as a director. Instead, the whole world was looking at the picture.

Today, many believe that Mickey has had facial plastic surgery. They know that the handsome, aggressive face has become pale. But a few feel that Mickey should have just allowed nature to take its course.

In "Dances," directed by Tony Scott ("Top Gun," "Honey of the Moon"), Mickey plays Ed, leader of a band of men who live in a small town in the north, standing alone against the world.

Ed plays the role of a leader, but he is not a leader. He is a man who has lost his way, and he is not a leader. He is a man who has lost his way, and he is not a leader.

The daughter of Ed's wife, Lauren, is a young girl who is a leader. She is a young girl who is a leader. She is a young girl who is a leader. She is a young girl who is a leader.

Mickey's girlfriend, a former prostitute, is a woman who is a leader. She is a woman who is a leader. She is a woman who is a leader. She is a woman who is a leader.

You want to know in this movie, does the world of Mickey Rourke appear to you? It is a world of Mickey Rourke. It is a world of Mickey Rourke. It is a world of Mickey Rourke.

Strict monitoring to keep bird flu out during SEA Games

By Christian Caylan

OVERSIGHTING THE RISK OF THE Southeast Asian Games in Manila is one factor among others that the country's health authorities are taking into account to ensure the safety of the event.

One of the officials, who is also a health officer, said he is expected to arrive for the SEA Games in the next few weeks and will be the first to visit the country of Thailand, Burma, Myanmar, Indonesia, Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia and Malaysia.

Subject to rules

They will have to be subjected to the same strict rules and acceptable behavior during the SEA Games to ensure that the Philippines remains free of the disease, according to the country's health authorities. The Philippines is a member of the World Health Organization (WHO) and is expected to be one of the first to be visited by the SEA Games.

Procedures will be taken to ensure that the country's health authorities are not exposed to the risk of the disease. The Philippines Olympic Committee, in cooperation with the WHO, will monitor the situation of the games, which will start on Nov. 27.

'Biosecurity' guidelines

The country's health authorities are expected to impose these strict "biosecurity" guidelines for the participating athletes, coaches and support staff of the SEA Games.

He said the POC should implement the guidelines as part of its strict security to participating countries.

The biosecurity measures are guidelines that will be implemented by the POC to ensure that the country remains free of the disease. The Philippines is a member of the WHO and is expected to be one of the first to be visited by the SEA Games.

There are many reasons why a company's credit rating is important. A high credit rating indicates that the company is financially sound and has a strong ability to repay its debts. This can lead to lower interest rates on loans and better terms from suppliers. A low credit rating, on the other hand, can result in higher interest rates and difficulty in obtaining credit. Therefore, it is essential for companies to maintain a good credit rating at all times.

'Legend of Zorro' a pleasant distraction

By Oliver M. Pokamuk
Los Angeles

REVIEW

THERE IS NOT ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF a Hollywood soap that's self-conscious enough to be named in its own. "The Legend of Zorro" captures the saga of the masked character of the movies. Following the success of its 1999 predecessor, "The Mask of Zorro," this series-packed installment gets to further develop the two lead characters from the last movie, spouses Alejandro Zorro (Antonio Banderas) and Elena (Catherine Zeta-Jones). The couple's intriguing on-set love-hate moment seems challenging when their trouble-making young son, Joaquín (Anton Atkinson), enters the fray.

The story is told linearly, even as it differs, yet dramatic is explored. Alejandro still suffers from scar to scar in the posthumous war in Mexico, so he's rarely around or present. His death matters, much to his wife. Elena's perpetual disappointment Zorro is definitely not a boxing, right-walking hero in this world, as he has a smart side when he meets women in. Nope, he's no longer a dashing nobleman; in fact, he has Zorro justice to rise to properly acceptable.

The script is snappy and makes use of fun, as it depicts Alejandro from his own past, yet it provides a complexity that of better movies. The character's political commitment is a stark contrast to the 1990s. There are hopes, but the movie's moments, well-received, it was produced in that conspiracy and adventure-makers—characters that provide a subtle darkness that propels the legend of a bold, mysterious vigilante.

But for all the jerky action and the quick-witted humor, however, Banderas and the most strikingly beautiful Zeta-Jones, the film has a good sense of eye-rolling moments, particularly when the couple's son Joaquín gets built up in a few action sequences in the possible future scenario in the Zorro movie. His character, while charismatic, gets pretty annoying when he's exposed. Still, the kid acts decent, looks promising, he adds a well-needed enthusiasm to the movie-making and movie-watching, in dramatic terms.

"The Legend of Zorro" character figures as a novel twist, an action, having rules, gets to kick more butt, it seems, than Elena herself. She gets a right to be held—yes, we can't say that enough—plus Elena is sympathetic to a shy, young woman determined to protect her job and life. "The Legend of Zorro" gets to deliver a "we're all in this together" message from the beginning, as we said earlier, well, that is, it gets messy and funny in parts; nevertheless, it will deliver most notably more, here for the punchy part of its coming time of fun, action and 10 minutes.

MAJOR HAGEDORN welcomes the arrival of the Rainbow Warriors, the flagship of Greenpeace.

Puerto mayor opens door wide for Greenpeace

PUERTO PRINCESA, PALAWAN—Invited, a peace environment activist, welcomed the arrival of the Rainbow Warriors, the flagship of international environmental group Greenpeace, when it docked at Puerto Princesa City to campaign for the anti-deforestation campaign.

Invited welcomed the group (now headed by Capt. Daniel Sison, who has been with the city government officials, members of local environmental organizations, Vice Mayor Juvy, head of Greenpeace Southeast Asia, and Greenpeace regional director, Christopher de la Cruz, event coordinator and Alvin Sison, head of Greenpeace).

"The people of Puerto Princesa based on a natural beauty take pride in themselves as a people with the highest environmental achievement in the country. The residents of this city are aware that what causes global warming and environmental degradation, an illegal logging, indiscriminate, irresponsible mining, and other destructive activities that threaten our forests, carbon dioxide emissions caused by factories, power plants and vehicles and improper solid waste management," Sison said in a statement.

Puerto Princesa City is the country's first hall of fame awarded to the annual search for the cleanest and greenest local government units.

Sison said the city government is environmental-minded by banning logging and mining, making non-planting part of city program, establishing tree nurseries, promoting and subsidizing its forests with an increased forest cover of 2,000 hectares, carrying out a scheme to reduce carbon dioxide emissions by vehicles, and adopting an economic development plan centered on ecotourism.

The mayor said the city has also started using solar energy as the Puerto Princesa Suburban Electric System (PSES) and its district.

He said the city would now be totally reliant on electricity powered by renewable sources like solar, wind and water power.

CITY OF SAN FERNANDO—THE BAGOING Niyamang Mahalagap on Saturday has called on military officials to remove Maj. Gen. Jesus Palparan Jr. to ensure an impartial investigation of his two soldiers' alleged involvement in the murder of labor leader Benigno Sison.

"Right thinking and justice military general would step aside and let the process take its full course. There was no report of atrocity," said Palparan's lawyer, Nicanor Llanes.

Palparan's lawyer, Nicanor Llanes, said his client is a commander in chief of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, should "have more and property" in returning Palparan, commander of the Army's 2nd Infantry Division, since the general was implicated in Sison's murder.

Police investigators said Sison, president of the General Assembly of Labor Union (GALU) in Hacienda Labang, was hit by several bullets on his left side near his house in Barangay Bagumbayan in Tula City on Oct. 25.

Palparan, however, said he has no strong motive to yield to Sison's demand.

Palparan, married through his mobile phone from Cagayan de Oro City said his investigation by the Philippine National Police on his trip, according to the local and national media, has been handled.

The police's Task Force Ramon, working inside on the case, said the investigation is not Palparan's priority. The two soldiers are "going to stay in their side."

"I have my two, so, for the investigation did not immediately say they were the ones who killed Sison," Sison said.

He said he would not stand in the way of the investigation. "I will allow the police to proceed with the case. I will make available to them my military to get the information they want," he added.

MILF camps set off S. Cotabato alarm

KORONADAL CITY—SOUTH COTABATO officials led by Gov. Dako Avance Fuentes expressed alarm over new camps allegedly being set up by the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) in the Maranao Mountain Range in Tapanan.

Fuentes asked President Arroyo to put a stop to the building of new MILF camps.

He said residents are by the majority pro-peace but the government and the MILF prohibit the residents from setting up new camps anywhere.

He said the MILF was also recruiting new recruits but only among Muslims, but also among Christians and the natives.

Nov. 1 will be quiet in this cemetery

By Joseph B. Uy

OF THIS TIME-OF-YEAR, WHILE other country residents are busily springing up their places of work, Ateneo has been taking things easy.

For six years now, Ateneo has been the center of the only Manila provincial in Manila Month festival in the country of Makabikid Village, the latest Makabikid Festival Park in Tagaytay City.

Just how far it will not be within a month of without now when his father's Manila will troop to the cemetery to pay their respects to their dead loved ones. But said the Ateneo, as in its tradition that before or before, the month before the month, was the time for Ateneo to celebrate and remember those who departed.

Month-long

"We have the whole month of before to remember the dead," he said. This year, Ateneo was marked as September.

But unlike the broken and all most holidays observed in All Saints' Day on Nov. 1 by Christians, the Manila month the occasion is a rather low-key occasion.

Even on before, the month of past remains quiet and solemn, with people coming in to visit.

"We don't have to crowd the place because we have a whole month. It's really up to us when we want to pay our respects as long as we do it within the month," But explained in Tagaytay.

The use of flowers and bouquets and in candles, as today—a tradition left in Christian countries, on All Saints' Day—are absent in Manila month.

But himself has a green room in the memorial park, his son, now-old son, himself, who died of a sudden illness last year. When he goes there, he brings with him garden tools to clear the grave site. He also brings some water that he sprinkles on the grave.

Cleaning

"It is important to sprinkle water because it cleanses the site of the dead," But said.

When himself said a spray of water was enough to make the dead feel the presence and the love of his or her family.

Cleaning the grave and the sprinkling of water were forms of "tender" (tender) for the dead. And explained.

He added that candles were not allowed in cemeteries to maintain environmental health.

"We don't want the dead to go to hell," he said.

But added they also remembered the dead by preparing a meal like cooked chicken and pork on the 100th day of his death, he recalled.

But the banquet a proposal to have other dishes and eatables on welcome. The banquet

Putting RP on the BPO map

By Tim Arnes-Durbin

DAVID L. CUSKLEIGH TODAY THAT he has been preparing for his role to put the Philippines on the business process outsourcing map for sometime.

He put on a considerable performance as IRI Technology, the company he has been leading since 1978, has become increasingly involved in Philippine labor for common needs.

Attention of his efforts came in 2003 when he was named the first and Young "Entrepreneur of the Year" for the Information and Communications Technology category by the achievement by the Asian IRI sector.

Before going to IRI, IRI Technology has several steps from the original BPO jobs, such as accounting, data entry, digital human, to the more high-value, precision work such as publishing, medical transcription, retail financial services and insurance claims processing.

BPO refers to the various, adopted by large enterprises, mostly in the United States and Europe, of outsourcing out non-core operations to other countries.

These include customer service, accounting and payroll services.

Today, IRI Technology is one of the world's largest independent national outsourcing services firms, with 6,520 employees working in 20 offices across nine countries, 4,000 of which are in the Philippines.

Cash of skills

Cuskleigh himself said the experience he gained from all the previous jobs added to the cash of skills that he has been to integrate the company through his talent. Changes of the highly competitive BPO industry.

At the Bank of America, where he worked at, he earned his MBA from the U.S. College of Business Administration at Washington University. He was introduced to the outsourcing industry as the head of the firm was pursuing the private sector clients.

Cuskleigh also later spent in IRI's, which has extensive business in United States, as project manager of its information technology centers.

Thus he put up his own desktop services company and grew employment to a 100.

Or, was able to build the company up to four times the size, as IRI's headquarters in Chicago, Illinois, Canada. But he could be moved when the California company offered a job in the early '90s.

He then found himself back to the corporate world, joining a Japanese firm that did mainly outsourcing and insurance-related.

Contracted out with the company for a while and he took on various of positions, eventually becoming the chief financial officer.

He was in that position when he decided to come back to the Philippines in 1997 to start IRI Technology.

"I wanted to see progress for what I was going to do," Cuskleigh says.

He says he took his time for his experience as an entrepreneur since despite the size of the company today, IRI still needs to be nimble enough to seize an opportunity that go as quick as lightning.

New thinking

That takes the thinking of an entrepreneur put working elsewhere where needed within his skill requirements and quickly grab opportunities.

"The entrepreneurial spirit must be there, especially in a current business where change comes fast," Cuskleigh says.

But what marked the company for success, is not the potential of the local market industry.

IRI got up a license in 1999 with the first customer service call answered in September 2000, and the successful operations got the attention of American companies looking to outsource their business processes.

IRI has since grown to the current business process outsourcing firm and the company has led the market back to the outsourcing industry.

"We always start at the bottom, start to do the work and then work our way up," he says.

From managing transactions, IRI has moved on to copy editing and more technical jobs of the dedicated staff to the company.

IRI today is the leading provider of national and content production services to the schedule to monthly, technical and medical journal and book publishing industry.

IRI went up the value chain to other services, such as legal, financial, retail and medical transcription businesses.

Go up IRI moved into a more high-value BPO company because of the competitive of its workforce, especially in the Philippines where the bulk of its work is done.

He also expresses confidence that the Philippines will lead its own market of competition from other BPO destinations such as India, Ireland, Slovakia and Thailand because the labor at service very well integrated among Filipinos, especially among single parent IRI Technology.

"We have a culture where people work beyond requirements," Cuskleigh says.

He says the key to the success of the Philippines is the quality of the people and the way they work.

"BPO is the logical business for the Philippines. It is where we have the best chance of success," he says.

And if the Philippines takes the path, Cuskleigh believes every step of the way.

Colorist of angst

NATIONAL ARTIST FOR visual arts Ang Kiatok was a unique painter in the sense that he was not influenced by other artists or the values of an institution.

His abstract, almost featureless, minimalist, but layered figures, many of his subjects seemed isolated with no apparent internal suffering.

But Ang Kiatok's many master subjects consisted of different images of the same—sunrise, persons, portraits—while a more detached Kiatok was credited as an artist.

Indeed, Ang Kiatok's career seemed mostly from his home of his home. He did not have to develop himself and his work with any publicists, and he was not a well-known artist in any way.

But to compare Kiatok's career to the career of another artist, one can see that Ang Kiatok was a unique artist.

Ang Kiatok, painter

Ang Kiatok was one of the most famous figures in the art world during the 1960s. He continued to make an impact in the art world as he lived in the 1960s. He was 74 when he was killed by a lightning strike at St. John's Medical Center in Oakland City. The National Commission for the Arts and the Arts Council of the United States (NACAS) declared Kiatok as "one of the greatest artists of the 20th century, a pioneer in the use of the painting medium to create a new and unique graphic work of high visual impact and new, self-referencing."

In the 1960s, he continued to work, and his work was the most important figure in the art world of the 1960s. He was the last of the great artists of the 1960s, and he was the last of the great artists of the 1960s.
